other rumor was current that the Erie had reduced grain freights to correspond with those by lake and canal, and had so notified other roads, but this, like other reports, could not be verified, at least no official announcement on the subject has reached the exchange. Prices went up or down according to the be-lief accorded these rumors, and speculators are said to be much mixed as to the real situ-ation. Among the trenk lines the fluctuations were confined within narrow limits and the market was without important features. The general passenger agent of the New York Central railroad said to-day that there had been no reduction in passenger rates, and another official of the same road said that they are negotiating with the Pennsylvania road in relation to the withdrawal of fast trains, and if the large road said that they and if this be not done the fare to Chicago will be reduced immediately.
